Requirements

In addition to providing a high quality, career-oriented, and affordable education, we offer a supportive and welcoming environment for international students.

International students with a high school diploma (or its equivalent) are welcome to study here. We offer rolling admissions throughout the year.

To apply, applicants must submit:

- A completed admissions application
- An Affidavit of Support
- Proof of proficiency in English, such as a satisfactory score on the TOEFL examination
- A high school diploma or its equivalent, and other evidence of qualifying for university study in their native country

Students without demonstrated proficiency in English may be admitted conditionally and required to complete a sequence of English language courses.

The Office of Admissions reviews documents received from international applicants throughout the year. Once accepted, you will receive all of the appropriate forms and information so you can begin your studies in the summer, fall, or spring semester.

Process: Following the conclusion of the add/drop period, the Bursar will identify registered undergraduate students with F1 or J1 visa codes in the Banner system and apply the corresponding exemption amount to the student's account.

Careers in Psychology

A BA in Psychology gives students a better understanding of people and behaviors and can pave the way to enter graduate programs in psychology or in other related fields such as guidance counseling, social work, medicine or law.

Psychology majors graduate prepared to enter human services organizations in a support role. With advanced training, students can one day enter careers as school counselors, forensic psychologists, and research or organizational psychologists.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, jobs in the field of psychology are expected to grow 12% by 2018. School psychology, industrial psychology, and organizational psychology are expected to be particularly popular. In the near future, hospitals, schools, social service agencies, and substance abuse treatment centers will have more job openings requiring psychology degrees.

The Behavioral Science Pathway Program

Are you thinking of pursuing an MS degree in either Clinical Mental Health Counseling, I-O Psychology, or Applied Behavior Analysis? If you'd like to try out the program before completing your undergraduate degree and get a jump start on your elective graduate coursework the Behavioral Science Pathway program is a great opportunity. By participating in this program, you can reduce your course load in graduate school, and in some cases earn your MS degree faster. Through this program, you will enroll as a Master of Science student in the School of Health Sciences (SHS) of Touro University.
