Additional information

Selecting a Major

Concordia University Chicago's pre-chiropractic medicine program is not a major, but includes sequences of foundational and prerequisite courses for entry into graduate professional study in chiropractic medicine.

Students may choose any major, as long as they complete the required prerequisite courses for admission to chiropractic school. However, the suggested pathway to a graduate program in chiropractic medicine is the Bachelor of Science in health science, as this will cover the most prerequisites. Because graduate program prerequisites vary from institution to institution, students must check directly with them for exact clinical hours and admission criteria.
