Additional information

Degree Overview

Students can develop spatial imagination, working at varying scales, contexts, and sites to develop their drawing, digital, making, and theoretical understanding. This will support students position as interior designers.

Students will have the opportunity to work on industry workshops and competitions and collaborate with international schools to explore local and global issues across a range of projects.

Study Reasons

Study the architectural, artistic, and social dimensions of interiors, generating design proposals that explore how we live, work, and play

Our graduates often work across creative industries

Learn to develop adaptive reuse strategies for architectural spaces and urban settings.
