Additional information

Degree Overview

Criminology examines theories and evidence relating to crime, criminals and victims, while Criminal Justice studies explore the various responses to crime and victims, from informal to formal legislative measures of social control and crime prevention; and examine the way in which the criminal justice system works - from policing through to imprisonment.

Study Reasons

- During the course, students will be taught by staff who combine research careers with a real dedication for teaching which takes place in a friendly and informal environment.
- A range of visiting speakers adds to the learning experience.
- The structure of the degree allows students to specialise as well as to cover a wide range of options and to rise to the intellectual challenges of the subject area. The first year is designed to build student's confidence.
