Additional information

Degree Overview

This degree programme includes a range of modules in entrepreneurship and technology, operations management, event production and marketing. Through your studies you'll have the chance to put your learning into practice on a UK or overseas-based internship in areas such as human resources or events management. You'll emerge from this hospitality management course with the skills and experience you need for managerial roles in an industry that employs over two million people in the UK. Upon graduation you will be able to identify and make the most of business opportunities and find creative solutions when problems arise. These attributes will make you highly attractive to employers, including those in hospitality marketing, guest services, HR, and revenue management.

Study Reasons
