Additional information

About the Programme

Architects are responsible not only for the aesthetic appearance of a building, but for its ergonomics, safety, accessibility, and environmental sustainability. They also take care of the comfort and health of the people using their constructions.

This department at ARUCAD is focused on cultivating specialists capable of executing a project from its conceptualization to the final phases of construction. Students will learn to solve realistic problems, present their solutions in a variety of contexts, and create inspiring, functional designs that incorporate modern technologies and materials.
