Additional information

Degree Overview

This course will help you to find your own identity as an artist through the development of core skills and practical techniques.

The course is focused on making and critical thinking, and you can concentrate on a single discipline or work across a number of disciplines and media. Your practical work will support a growing critical and contextual understanding of the theory of art and culture.

Taught by practicing artists of international standing, our academic staff exhibit and publish nationally and internationally. In 2015 Fine Art lecturer Graham Fagen represented Scotland at the Venice Biennale (one of the most prestigious cultural exhibitions in the world).

Using our large studios, you can explore drawing, painting, time-based art, digital media, sculpture, print, photography, video, sound, performance, installation, and artists' books.

You will also have access to all our world-class workshops, where you can experiment with whichever materials you require.

Study Reasons

Our graduates have established successful careers as artists, working nationally and internationally, such as Turner Prize winner Susan Philipsz.

Fine Art graduates have developed careers in: exhibition curation, publishing, writing and research gallery management researchers, curators, and theorists arts administration

Our graduates enter industries that require creative skills and knowledge, including the media, film, and entertainment industries.
