Degree Overview

The major supports and engages students as they gain knowledge about children, youth, and their families from a developmental perspective and prepares them to serve in school and community settings. All of our concentrations prepare students for advanced study in various disciplines. Students choose courses in their concentration to prepare for post-graduate studies in fields such as education, law, child life, medicine, psychology, social work, recreation, counseling, and physical therapy.

Study Reasons

Youth Work and Out of School Time: Prepares students to work in out-of-school time programs such as after-school programs, social service agencies, juvenile justice, recreation, residential treatment facilities for school-age children and youth, or other community-based programs for children and youth

School Age Child and Family: Prepares students who wish to become elementary school teachers and plan to enroll in a Multiple Subjects Teaching Credential Program after graduation.

Early Childhood: Prepares students to work in a variety of settings from social service agencies to preschools, serving children to birth to five-years-old and their families. This concentration is recommended for students who wish to meet requirements for the Child Development Permit issued by the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing.
