Additional information

Marketing

By undergoing this module at Bangor University for a degree in Marketing, students will develop skills and knowledge of the essential strategic and operational aspects of marketing, and you will obtain an awareness of the external marketing environment.

Degree Overview

Strategic and operational aspects of marketing involve the formulation of marketing strategies, managing the marketing function and its positioning related to other key business functions, advertising and branding, customer relations management, applications of information technology, and e-marketing. The external marketing environment surrounds consumer behaviour and consumer psychology, marketing communication, public relations, and market research. This course programme also provides coverage across a wide range of business and management subjects, developing knowledge and understanding of organisations, their management, and the changing external environment in which they operate.

Study Reasons

- All single honors students taking degrees within Bangor Business School, including this Marketing degree, follow the same modules in year 1, so students are allowed to change to another Business School degree anytime up to the start of year 2.
- Bangor University arrange a varied programme of guest lectures. Recent speakers have included the Chief Executive of the Scottish Premier League, the Chief Operating Officer of No. 10 & 11 Downing Street, and the Head of IT Security at HSBC.
