Degree Overview

With a range of optional modules available alongside the core curriculum, you'll be able to tailor the programme to your areas of academic interest and your career aspirations.

You'll learn from School of Law academics with significant research expertise and international legal experience in areas including:

- social justice
- criminal law
- human rights
- energy and environment
- competition law
- intellectual property

You do not need to have studied law at undergraduate level to take the LLM in International Legal Studies. If you have not previously studied law, you will take a two-week Introduction to Law course before the start of the programme to ensure you are familiar with the basic legal institutions and sources of international and English law.
