Speciality

Spotlight module: 'Diplomacy in Action'

This specialisation unit comprehensively advances a contextual and conceptual understanding of Modern Diplomacy. It investigates the evolution of the geopolitical landscape alongside the major developments, technologies and global crises that have cast renewed emphasis on the importance of diplomatic practice in advancing national interests and foreign policy.

Additional information

Shaping Global Relations

The growth of globalisation requires all modern managers to think critically in order to recognise areas of growth for their organisation. Therefore, growing economic cooperation between nations as well as the increasing influence of the private sector in government policy making represents a special opportunity for organisations to develop new avenues for growth. Within the framework of the MBA Diplomacy, you will learn how to deal with the complexities in analysing and managing an ever-evolving global economy.

Governments and business organisations are now more conscious that they need better-trained officials to help them achieve their objectives in promoting business and trade, and for maintaining international security. This is precisely the training that our new and unique MBA Diplomacy will focus on.
